

War of the Portal

Part 1, Chapter 10 - "The Sealing"

January 10, 2005

By Alkador

Note: The Latin is not perfect.

Jonthomson and Gfoxcook stood at the centre of the island, ensuring that their backs were together. They brought their right hands to their chests, muttering the spell in unison. Their deep words echoed throughout the whole portal.

“They’re coming,” Said TheJoe324.

“Vis viris supter. Vis viris superus. Vis viris eminus oriens et occasus.”

A submissions bursted from the ocean of pink, flying towards the prepared guard. He struck his hammer at the creature as it fell back into the portal.

“Ego vocare vis viris eminus intestinus universum. Vis viris reservare.”

Drimarki threw his fist at one of the black mutated submissions that climbed onto the ledge. The man punched the seemingly immortal creature back into the chasms of the portal.

“Vis viris liberare. Redeo vis viris illo dextera.”

A red ball of energy began to stream in the men’s right hands, a energy created from fine threads that seemed the same as the threads that flickered in the sea beneath them. Inuzuka-Kiba and BonusStage threw their fists at the wild submissions made their way up to the portal, ensuring that they were not struck in the process.

“Qui illo vis viris qui quondam qua. Vis viris nunc. Et illo vis viris fieri sum. Mei.”

Recon_Rebel threw uppercuts and high kicks to the submissions that dared to move towards the two spellcasters. He smiled as he punched his fist through the body of a white submission, killing it instantly. Energy continued to fill Recon_Rebel as he attacked more submissions.

“Ego vocare vis viris eminus pectus mundus adjicio dextera. Illo vis viris contegere.”

RedCircle launched his bat at the wild submissions, ensuring that they went back from where they came from. He gasped as he noticed a black submission with a large pink gem attached to its forehead, attempting to move closer to the focused guards. He charged towards it as its eyes flashed towards him, followed by a sudeen bolt of electricity erupted from the ground. He dodged the spell as TheJoe324 slammed the strange creature back into the portal.

“Vis viris effringo et potentia sic verus. Honor, veritas et justicia. Convenio me.”

Time was running out. The edge of the island was slowly crumbling away as Drimarki slipped, clinging onto the edge with his life.

Inzuka-Kiba clambered down to his aid. "I won't let go – I promise!"

Recon_Rebel and BonusStage moved towards them as two black submissions tried to leap on the defenseless men, intending to push them both off the edge. Recon_Rebel slammed his fist against one of the incoming submissions, forcing the monster's face to the ground.

"Vis viris vocare contego omnis iam."

"I can't hold on any longer!" Cried Drimarki.

"Contego intestinus universum!"

The two guards spoke together once more. "It is done! The portal is sealed!"